

August Roundup: Integration upgrade & emojis

Mid-August additions to the CrowdComms Platform

It might well be holiday season, but while the product team take turns sunning themselves on the English riviera or climbing Welsh mountains, those who remain continue development at pace.

With that in mind, on Thursday 19th August we'll be releasing a few extra summer features into the platform.

Here's what to expect...

Eventsforce Integration improvements

You may already be aware that we've had an integration with Eventsforce for quite some time. We know it's a registration platform that's widely used, and because of that, we wanted to give it the attention it deserved. As with most leading registration platforms you can do a lot with it. Capturing specific requirements from your delegates at the beginning of the journey can be a lot easier than asking for it once they arrive on site.

So, from this coming Thursday you'll be able to map your custom fields from one platform to another. Keeping the two experiences in parallel while you concentrate on delivering a great event.

We've got our experts on hand to guide you through it if you need some help setting it up.

Session Chat

Another small request that gets asked for a lot is session chat emoji reactions. Well, we were in the process of updating the styles of our session chat, and decided to add 6 of our most requested icons in a 'quick pick' menu. We think you'll give it a thumbs up, maybe even some applause?

There's further user experience enhancements to the live stream template coming next month, so let us know if you'd like an early peak at what we've got planned.
